About Kenco Logistics Services

Overview

Kenco was founded in 1950 as a public warehouse company in Chattanooga, Tennessee. Today, Kenco is one of the nation's leading third party logistics providers, with 85 facilities and 18 million square feet in 20 states and Canada.

The company provides warehousing, transportation management, packaging, engineering support, and information technology services to its clients.

Kenco offers turnkey service for transportation management activities. Companies retain Kenco to provide innovative solutions that lower transportation costs, improve customer service, and reduce order cycle times.

Kenco utilizes LeanLogistics® web-native Transportation Management System. With LeanLogistics, the company has the ability to strategize, plan, execute, and settle transportation transactions, while maintaining comprehensive event visibility and performance analysis. Clients have access to the system with full shipment-level visibility related to status and cost.

Kenco engineers utilize site optimization software to pinpoint the optimal locations for distribution centers, ensuring faster delivery time, lower transportation cost and improved customer satisfaction.
